Why Speakers, Entrepreneurs & Small Business Owners should write

- Provides visibility
- Establishes credibility
- Exposes you to new clients/customers/hiring managers
- Keeps you in front of existing clients/customers
- Provides content for Presentation Folders, Press Kits and accomplishments for CVs
- Helps you formulate new ideas, concepts and theories
- Gives you material for books, booklets, future presentations and other deliverables

What do you write about?

- What are you selling? What are you expert in? That's what you can write about!
Focus on solutions, benefits and outcomes for your readers

What am I expert in? _____, _____,
 _____, _____, _____.

Can I transcribe my Presentations to transform into articles?

- NO! Speaking and Writing are different: different lexicons, different phrasing.
It's better to write from scratch.

What form should my articles take?

- As the Subject Matter Expert (SME) you can disseminate your wisdom in a variety of forms: Tips, Lists, How-To's, Case Studies, Interviews, Stories, Position Pieces, Opinions/Editorials, Columns, Quizzes, Blog and Guest Blog posts, Letter to the Editor, etc.
- Articles can appear in print or on-line (or both). Newspapers, magazines, newsletters, journals, websites, e-zines and more all need content.
- Recycle! Same Article, Different Title. Tweak for Audiences and Timeliness. Spin it!

Who should you write for?

- Who do you want to do business with? What do they read? Write for those publications!
- Study who writes for them. Study their tone and style. Understand each publication's appeal and reader demographics.
- Obtain EDITORIAL GUIDELINES if any exist. Ask for an EDITORIAL CALENDAR if one exists.
- Contact editors and ASK what they pay for, what they seek and what matters to them
- Use the STANDARD PERIODICAL DICTIONARY OF MAGAZINES, ULRICH'S PERIODICALS DIRECTORY, the MAGAZINE & NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY, WRITERS MARKET or websites like www.abbycon.com/magazines or <http://newsdirectory.com/news/magazine> to research publications.
- Pitch editors with a list of working titles and short summaries. Pitch story ideas in concert with current events, seasons and holidays, etc. Look for tie-ins.

Showcasing you

- Be provocative! If you are bold, different, creative, a contrarian or controversial you will find it easier to get published. Exciting, shocking or creative titles, subtitles and content appeals to most editors.
- Include your contact information (telephone, e-mail, URL) and a "tag line" about your business with your articles. Seek hot links back from all web articles to your site.

Action steps:

I will _____ by _____.

I will _____ by _____.

Extra Extra... Read All About You!

What is the purpose of your next article?

- Inform? Inspire? Teach? Entertain? Promote? Enlighten?
 Other? _____

Who are you writing for?

After reading your article what do you want your readers to do/be able to do?

What form will your piece take?

- Story/series of stories? How-to with numbered instructions? Interview?
 Tips article full of bulleted items? Case study? Scientific? Quiz?
 Narrative? Industry white paper? Channeled? Other? _____

Can you outline it?

Bio/Contact info:

What's your hook?

What is special, different, urgent, unique, novel or otherwise noteworthy about your piece, you and/or the way it's written?

What do your readers want? (Like audiences, readers ask "WII-FM?")

What can you offer readers?

- Secrets? Solutions? Success? Innovation? Warm fuzzy feelings?
- Timeliness? Contrarian's view? Other? _____

GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

- ❖ Keep your copyrights! Give "one time" or "first time" rights. Retain web rights.
- ❖ One article...multiple renditions! (similar to "Same Speech, Different Title")
Don't recreate the wheel. Repurpose pieces! Modify core article to speak to the needs of different readers.
- ❖ Find an editor, proofreader or reviewer to work with. Barter with them if you can't afford to pay them!
- ❖ Work on multiple pieces at a time. Build content toward a Chapter, Reader or Book.
- ❖ Build relationships with editors, bloggers and other publishers.
- ❖ Develop your ability to think in terms of articles. Topics abound. When good and bad things happen they are usually grist for future articles.
- ❖ Once written, spread your word. Post everywhere! I've used www.articletrader.com and web researcher Jagmohan Saluja (jag@internet-researcher.com) to upload.
- ❖ Make style guides your friend.
- ❖ Leverage your network of associations. Also consider the Bay Area Independent Publishers Association www.baipa.net if a book is in your future.
- ❖ Events like Michael Larsen's annual SF Writers Conference (Feb. 12-15, 2015) are recommended: www.sfwriters.org/

RESOURCES

Craig Recommends

EDITORIAL: For books and manuscripts: Barbara McNichol of Tucson, AZ, editor@barbaramnichol.com, 520-615-7910. She's spoken to our chapter, an NSA member who has done a great deal of work with other NSAers. Her e-zine Word Tripper of the Week and wonderful booklet entitled Word Trippers are keepers. Visit her website: www.barbaramnichol.com

LEGAL: NSA/NC member Sandy Sheperd, Esq, a local attorney for trademark, copyright issues, DBAs, and more. Her North Bay company, GOOD SOLUTIONS has many NSA/NC members. (707) 333-6191 sandy@goodsolutions.com. She's her easy to work with, ethical and affordable.

GHOST-WRITING/WRITING PARTNERSHIPS: Sallie Goetch is a local professional known as THE AUTHOR-IZER. She helps people publish their books. She also has experience in trademark and patent research and has a literary background. 510/526-7244 sallie@author-izer.com.

WHITE PAPER: View NSA's piece on The Expertise Imperative. Creating a white paper you share with (not sell to) others establishes your credibility in an area and thus positions you intelligently. It gives you standing and is a contribution to your field or community.

PUBLIC RELATIONS: Dan Janal's PR Leads is a great way to get media folks to connect to you in their time of need. Many NSA members use PR Leads. Pro-Track grad Alexandra Watkins, EAT MY WORDS, has had success with this service, as has Simma Lieberman and current NSA/NC colleagues, and many more nationwide. He's a gentleman too. www.prleads.com.

TIPS BOOKLETS: Paulette Ensign is the Queen of Tips Booklets. <http://www.tipsbooklets.com> She's done teleseminars on this topic for SpeakerNetNews. Purchase her SpeakerNet News teleconference on tips booklets.

ANTHOLOGY BOOKS: Contact speaker/publisher Caterina Rando of SF, www.caterinar.com or NSA's Doug Smart (770) 587-1050 <http://www.jamesandbrookfield.com/> for information on their offers.

AGENT: Michael Larsen, Larsen/Pomada Literary Agency. www.larsen-pomada.com. (415) 673-0939.
